1. Purpose and Scope of Policy

NALP Training Limited, trading as the National Paralegal College (NPC), is a training organisation specialising in qualifications and courses aimed at Paralegals. The qualifications are awarded by NALP which is an Ofqual regulated awarding body. Ofqual is the government body that regulates qualifications in England. Other courses and certificates are awarded by NPC, all of which are accredited by the CPD Standards Office.

NPC does not offer Recognition of Prior Learning for its CPD courses.

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is applicable to the regulated qualifications offered by NPC and awarded by NALP under NALP's RPL policy. This policy reflects how NPC assists NALP in the application of RPL.

2. Maintaining Standards

NPC is not responsible for any assessment decisions in respect of NALP qualifications, however, it recognises NALP's requirement that, regardless of any exemptions for prior learning, all Learners must demonstrate that they have met a consistent standard in order to attain their NALP qualification.

NALP has put in place a full RPL policy which shows the maximum RPL allowable for the qualifications it awards. Please see here for full details of this and of the charges applicable.

3. General Requirements for Recognition of Prior Learning

3.1 Qualifications

There are some qualifications which NALP have already set the RPL allowable. Where a learner can demonstrate that they have attained one of these qualifications, NPC will inform NALP and make the application directly for RPL on the learner's behalf. Such applications require a fee of £50 to be paid to NALP on application which will need to be paid by the Learner in advance.

The qualifications already mapped and the amount of RPL applicable are as follows:

Other qualifications not listed on the Exemption Table will need to be mapped individually by NALP. A Learner will need to provide NPC with the full details of the course or qualification they have previously attained which NPC will pass onto NALP, who will then map the Learner's obtained qualification against the NALP Syllabus. Please note: Such applications attract a non-returnable fee for the mapping process which a learner will need to pay in advance. The applicable fees applied by NALP are included in their RPL Policy which can be found here.

3.2 Experiential Learning

NPC is aware that NALP recognises that some Learners may not have formal qualifications but can demonstrate knowledge and understanding gained through experience which may be just as valid in terms of an application for Recognition of Prior Learning, however, NALP does require full details of the experience gained. This application also attracts fees payable in advance by the Learner. NPC will assist the Learner with the application for RPL based on experience, in line with the requirements laid out in Section 5 of NALP's RPL policy.

4. Applying for Recognition of Prior Learning

NPC will endeavour to assist any learner who wishes to apply for RPL for a NALP qualification, however all Learners should ensure that they have all relevant evidence, documentation and other details to support their application.

If a Learner believes they have a legitimate claim for RPL, they should contact NPC in the first instance to check if their claim is likely to be valid. Once confirmed, the learner will then need to provide all relevant details and evidence in writing, plus pay the applicable fee that will be applied by NALP.

NALP has included some further guidance on making an application for RPL within their RPL Policy, which can be downloaded from their website, here.
